Editorial Review

Review

"Everywhere I look these days no poetry is being written. There is a lot of pretend poetry, but nothing really this fine. With this book it makes it very easy for me to say: Laura Bentley, I dub thee poet supreme." - Ray Bradbury

"Laura Bentley's eye is drawn to what others often overlook or refuse to examine, the detritus and back rooms and alleyways of a frightening and frightened world. Here are portraits of the broken and the maimed; here are narratives of hopelessness and redemption; here are strong lyric engagements with landscape; and here is the solace of geological time. This book charts a pilgrim's journey in language with growing assurance and control. It is a journey already rich with achievement." - Paula Meehan

About the Author

Laura Treacy Bentley is a poet, novelist, and book editor for WV LIVING magazine. LAKE EFFECT is her first poetry collection. Born in Hagerstown, Maryland, she has lived most of her life in Huntington, West Virginia. Laura received a Fellowship Award for Literature from the West Virginia Commission on the Arts, and her poems have been featured on Poetry Daily and A Prairie Home Companion. In 2003 she was honored to read her poetry with Ray Bradbury in Venice, California. One of her poems, "Keepsake," was chosen by the editors of O MAGAZINE and appears on their website. Her work has been published widely in the United States and Ireland. Her first novel THE SILVER TATTOO---a dark literary thriller set in mythical Ireland---will be released soon.
